

Contents

1	Introduction	17
1.1	The Connection Between X-ray Astronomy and Radio Pulsars	17
1.2	Historical Overview of Imaging X-ray Telescopes and Their Instrumentation	20
1.3	The Chandra X-ray Observatory and This Thesis	22
1.4	Publications	29
1.4.1	Refereed Journals	29
1.4.2	Conference Proceedings	29
1.5	Acronyms	31
	Part I: Instrumentation	33
2	The Chandra X-ray Observatory and ACIS	35
2.1	Overview	35
2.2	Scientific Instruments	36
2.2.1	HRMA	36
2.2.2	Imagers	38
2.2.3	Transmission Gratings	40
2.3	ACIS	42
2.3.1	Basic Description	42
2.3.2	Event Detection and Grading	44
2.3.3	Electronics	46
3	Absolute Calibration of X-ray CCDs Using Synchrotron Radiation	47
3.1	Introduction	47
3.2	Measurements	48
3.3	Analysis	53
3.3.1	Storage Ring Current	53
3.3.2	Effects of the Chopper Wheel	55
3.4	Pileup	63
3.4.1	A Brief Description	63
3.4.2	Pileup Correction	63
3.5	Model Fitting	66
3.5.1	Detector Model	66

3.5.2	Fitting Results	67
3.5.3	Spatial Uniformity	74
3.5.4	Preliminary Assessment of Wavelength Shifter Data	76
3.6	Quantum Efficiency of the Reference Detectors	78
3.6.1	Methodology	78
3.6.2	Relative Efficiencies of Transfer Standard Detectors	79
3.6.3	Uncertainties	81
3.6.4	Model Limitations	81
4	Measurement of the Sub-pixel Structure of Chandra CCDs	83
4.1	Introduction	83
4.2	Experimental Method	85
4.2.1	Concept	85
4.2.2	Moiré Phenomena	86
4.2.3	Data Acquisition	87
4.3	Data Analysis and Results	88
4.4	Determination of the Channel Stop Dimensions	90
4.5	Determination of the Gate Structure Dimensions	98
4.6	Additional Results	102
4.6.1	Clocking Effects	102
4.6.2	Evidence of Charge Cloud Diffusion	103
4.7	Prospects for Sub-pixel Resolution	106
4.8	Charge Loss in the Channel Stops	108
4.9	Improvement to the Mesh Technique	110
4.9.1	Refined Experimental Method	110
4.9.2	Data Analysis and Results	114
5	Charge Loss in the Channel Stops	121
5.1	Introduction	121
5.1.1	Evidence for Charge Loss in the Mesh Data	122
5.2	Voltage and Temperature Dependence	125
5.2.1	Measurement method	128
5.3	Future Prospects	131
	Part II: Astrophysics	133
6	X-ray Observations of Young Rotation-powered Pulsars	135
6.1	Introduction	135
6.1.1	Essential Pulsar Physics	135
6.1.2	High-energy Observations	137
6.2	PSRs B1046–58 and B1610–50	142
6.2.1	Background	142
6.3	Observations	144
6.4	PSR B1046–58	145

6.4.1	Image Analysis	145
6.4.2	Flux Estimation	150
6.4.3	Timing	151
6.5	PSR B1610–50	152
6.5.1	Image Analysis	152
6.5.2	Flux Estimation	155
6.6	Discussion	155
6.6.1	PSR B1046–58	155
6.6.2	3EG J1048–5840	157
6.6.3	PSR B1610–50	158
6.6.4	$L_x - \dot{E}$ Relationships	159
7	The New Pulsar-Supernova Remnant System PSR J1119–6127 and SNR G292.2–0.54	161
7.1	Introduction	161
7.2	Observations	162
7.3	Data Reduction	165
7.3.1	Image Analysis	165
7.3.2	Timing Analysis	170
7.3.3	Spectral Analysis	171
7.4	Discussion	179
7.4.1	General properties of G292.2–0.54	179
7.4.2	X-ray properties of G292.2–0.54	182
7.4.3	AX J1119.1–6128.5	188
8	X-ray Observations of the High Magnetic Field Radio Pulsar PSR J1814–1744	195
8.1	Introduction	195
8.2	Archival Data Analysis	198
8.2.1	ROSAT	198
8.2.2	ASCA	199
8.3	Discussion	200
8.3.1	The X-ray Luminosity Upper Limit of PSR J1814–1744	200
8.3.2	Beaming and Source Variability	204
8.3.3	Implications for Magnetar Models	207
8.4	Conclusions	209
A	Acronyms	219
B	Derivation of the Moiré Equation	221
C	A Novel Approach for Measuring the Channel Stop and Gate Parameters	225
C.1	Introduction	225

C.2	Charge Loss in the Channel Stop	226
C.3	Simplified CCD Geometry and Origin of Event Grades	227
C.4	Measurement of Channel Stop Parameters	229
C.5	Measurement of Gate Lengths	230
D	Expression for Signal-to-Noise Ratio	233
E	The Central X-Ray Point Source in Cassiopeia A	235
E.1	Abstract	235
E.2	Introduction	236
E.3	Observations and Analysis	238
	E.3.1 ACIS Data Reduction	239
	E.3.2 X-Ray Spectral Fitting	243
	E.3.3 X-Ray Timing	248
E.4	Discussion	249
	E.4.1 Classical Young Pulsar	250
	E.4.2 Cooling Neutron Star	252
	E.4.3 Accretion onto a Neutron Star or Black Hole	254
	E.4.4 Comparison with AXPs, SGRs, and Radio-quiet Point Sources	257
E.5	Conclusions	259
E.6	References	260

List of Figures

1-1	X-ray telescope image quality	24
1-2	QE of imaging X-ray telescope focal plane instruments	25
1-3	Energy resolution of imaging X-ray telescope focal plane instruments	26
2-1	Chandra X-ray Observatory	36
2-2	Principle of Wolter-I optics and a view of the HRMA	37
2-3	Chandra High Resolution Camera (HRC)	39
2-4	Chandra Advanced CCD Imaging Spectrometer (ACIS)	40
2-5	The High Energy Transmission Grating (HETG)	41
2-6	MIT Lincoln Laboratories CCID-17	43
3-1	PTB White Light beamline at BESSY	48
3-2	Synchrotron spectra as a function of height above the electron orbital plane	51
3-3	Storage ring current of BESSY during the June 1996 user shift	54
3-4	CCD light curve from BESSY (DEA electronics)	56
3-5	CCD light curve from BESSY (LBOX electronics)	57
3-6	Light curves for different chip positions	58
3-7	Histograms of events frame ⁻¹ from BESSY data	60
3-8	Description of pileup	64
3-9	Observed BESSY spectra for a range of storage ring currents	65
3-10	Raw and pileup-corrected BESSY spectra	66
3-11	Cross section of the gate structure compared to the Slab and Stop model	69
3-12	Best-fit model for w103c4 from BESSY measurements	70
3-13	Best-fit model for w190c1 from BESSY measurements	71
3-14	Best-fit model for w190c3 from BESSY measurements	72
3-15	Uniformity map of w190c1	75
3-16	PTB/BESSY absolute efficiencies vs. MIT CSR relative efficiencies for reference detectors w190c3 and w103c4.	80
4-1	Two views of the thin metal foil (mesh)	86
4-2	View of the experimental setup use for initial mesh measurements	88
4-3	Raw and deconvolved moiré data	89
4-4	Representitive Pixels measured with the 4 μ m mesh	91

4-5	SEM photograph of an ACIS CCD cleaved to show the channel stop structure	92
4-6	The five parameter model used in determining the dimensions of the channel stop.	92
4-7	Variation in detection efficiency due to differing amounts of attenuation in the dead layers of the channel stop.	94
4-8	Contour plots for channel stop model parameters	96
4-9	Best-fit HEXS channel stop model compared to experimental data.	97
4-10	SEM photograph of an ACIS CCD cleaved to expose the gate structure	99
4-11	The fifteen parameter model used to describe the gate structure.	99
4-12	Quantum efficiency across the gate structure, determined from O K α data	101
4-13	QE across the gates with clocking scheme: ϕ_1 low, ϕ_2 and ϕ_3 high	102
4-14	QE across the gates with clocking scheme: ϕ_1 and ϕ_3 low, ϕ_2 high	104
4-15	Attenuation length and charge distribution width as a function of energy	105
4-16	Chandra HRMA encircled energy surfaces projected onto a schematic of sub-pixel locations.	107
4-17	Pixel maps of shoulder and photopeak events	109
4-18	SEM photographs of the 1.4 μm mesh	110
4-19	Improvements to the mesh technique	111
4-20	Comparison of results using meshes with 4 and 1.4 μm holes	112
4-21	Representitive Pixels measured with the 1.4 μm mesh	113
4-22	Attenuation due to absorption in the channel stop, as determined with the 1.4 μm mesh	115
4-23	Contour plots for channel stop parameters at two energies	116
4-24	Combined contour plots, entire redistribution function	117
4-25	Combined contour plots, photopeak only	119
5-1	Spectra of split events at 1487 eV	122
5-2	Fraction of shoulder across the Si K edge	123
5-3	Potential through the channel stops for positive and negative gate bias	126
5-4	Shoulder profiles at several different gate voltages	127
5-5	Typical spectrum for the charge loss measurements	129
5-6	Growth of the shoulder as a function of temperature	130
6-1	ASCA images of PSR B1046–58	146
6-2	ASCA images of PSR B1610–50	153
7-1	ASCA images of PSR J1119–6127	167
7-2	ROSAT images of PSR J1119–6127	170
7-3	Spectral extraction regions for G292.2–0.54 from ASCA and ROSAT	172
7-4	Spectra of G292.2–0.54 overlayed with best-fit MEKAL model	176
7-5	Spectra of G292.2–0.54 overlayed with best-fit MEKAL model	177

7-6	ASCA and ROSAT images of G292.2–0.54 showing the location of dark cloud DC 292.3–0.4	186
7-7	ASCA image of region around AX J1119.1–6128.5	190
8-1	$P - \dot{P}$ diagram for radio pulsars and AXPs	197
8-2	Count-rate diagram for PSR J1814–1744	203
B-1	Sketch of the moiré phenomena	222
C-1	Redistribution functions at 525 eV with different voltages	226
C-2	Cross-section of an idealized CCD.	227
C-3	Overhead view of a 2×2 array of pixels	228
E-1	Chandra image of Cassiopeia A	242
E-2	ACIS spectrum of the Cas A point source	247

List of Tables

2-1	ASCA grades and their corresponding event type for X-rays	45
3-1	Summary of synchrotron measurements made at PTB beamlines at BESSY.	52
3-2	Readout times for LBOX data	62
3-3	Readout times for LBOX data	62
3-4	Final readout times for the LBOX and DEA	63
3-5	CCD detection efficiency model parameters	68
3-6	CCD model parameter fit results from synchrotron radiation measurements	73
3-7	Uniformity of w190c1 determined from BESSY measurements	77
4-1	Summary of initial mesh measurements.	88
4-2	Channel stop values derived from HEXS data	95
4-3	Channel stop values derived from the entire SRF	116
4-4	Channel stops values derived from photopeak data	118
6-2	Astrometric and spin parameters for PSRs B1046–58 and B1610–50	143
6-3	ASCA SIS detection of PSR B1046–58	149
7-1	Astrometric and spin parameters for PSRs J1119–6127 and B1509–58.	163
7-2	Spectral fit parameters for SNR G292.2–0.5	175
7-3	X-ray temperature dependence on elemental abundances	184
7-4	X-ray flux and luminosity for SNR G292.2–0.5	189
8-1	Comparison of PSR J1814–1744 and 1E 2259+586	203
8-2	Pulse properties of known AXPs	205
E-1	Selected Chandra observations of Cas A	240
E-2	X-ray spectral fits for Cas A point source	246

