Introduction

Welcome to the Transition!

New design! The library is moving to a new Web design. Instead of separating article resources from other types of resources, we are creating guides that bring everything together in one place.

Combined lists. In the past, the library's Web site had separate links to "Articles Indexes by Subject" and "Subject Guides to Resources." This page combines these two lists into one. Select your subject and you will find both types of resources.

Lack of consistency. During the transition, you will find that some of the links on this page go to the new style pages (e.g., Bio & Env Sci), while others go to the old "Subject Guides to Resources" pages. If you go to one of the older pages, use the "Articles: [subject]" link at the top of the page to access article resources.

Apologies! As time goes on, we will

You can do a simple--or a complicated--search.

For a simple search, enter your words in this box and click on "Search."

By default, your search will require that all of your words occur in each result.

TIP: To search for a phrase, put it in quotation marks: "domestic violence"

By default, you are searching deep within the full text of articles to find your words.

This can be both good (finds obscure things) and bad (finds obscure things!).

Note: You can change these default settings.

Let's do a search on the topic:
“The impact of domestic violence on children.” Here's how I'd search.

The screenshot shows the EBSCOhost search interface. At the top, there's a navigation bar with links like "New Search", "Publications", and "Subject". Below this, the search area is titled "Searching: SocINDEX with Full Text". There are three input fields for search terms, each with a dropdown menu to select a field. The first field contains the phrase "domestic violence" in quotes, and the second field contains the word "children". The third field is empty. Between the first and second fields, and between the second and third, there are "AND" buttons. To the right of the input fields are "Search" and "Clear" buttons. Below the input fields, there are links for "Basic Search", "Advanced Search", "Visual Search", and "Search History". At the bottom, there's a section for "Search Options" with a table that includes options like "Boolean/Phrase" and "Also search words (within the full text of articles)".

I want the phrase “domestic violence” so I put it in quotes.

I also want to include the concept of children, so I put it in the next box.

Note that SocINDEX will combine the two concepts with an “AND”. This will make my results more specific.
(An “OR” broadens your results to include either term.)

Finally, click on “Search”

This finds over 13,000 results!
Let's reduce this to a more manageable number.

Wait a minute! This is confusing!

What's the difference between a Subject and a Subject: Thesaurus Term?

- Subjects are...
 - General words chosen by the authors to describe the content of their articles.
 - There is no standardization, so authors can use different words to describe the same concept.
 - For example: some may use “dogs” and other may use “canines.”

What's the difference between a Subject and a Subject: Thesaurus Term?

- Subject: Thesaurus Terms are...
 - Subject headings from a preset list of terms used to describe the content of an article.
 - These terms are standardized so related concepts are all assigned the same thesaurus term.
 - For example: Every article mentioning either “dogs” or “canines” or “poodles” is listed under the term “dogs.”

What's the difference between a Subject and a Subject: Thesaurus Term?

- Subject: Thesaurus Terms...
 - Thesaurus terms are more useful than keywords when you want to find every article on a particular topic. Just use the right term.
 - You can use the “Subject Terms” tool (in the blue menu bar at the top) like a dictionary (or more precisely, like a “thesaurus”) to find the right term for your concept.
 - Try it...you'll like it!!

Now that you understand, let's continue to narrow our results using the Subject: Thesaurus Term, option.

The screenshot shows a database search interface. On the left, there are filters for 'Refine your results' (Full-Text Items, References Available, Scholarly (Peer Reviewed) Articles), 'Source Types', and 'Subject: Thesaurus Term'. The 'Subject: Thesaurus Term' section lists several terms with checkboxes: FAMILY violence, CHILD abuse, VICTIMS of family violence, CHILD psychology, FAMILY conflict, and HOME environment. The 'FAMILY violence' checkbox is highlighted with a callout. The main search results area shows a list of articles. The first article is titled 'Best Practices for Developing Child Protection Workers' Skills: Domestic Violence, Substance Abuse, and Mental Health Training.' and is by 'By: S. ...'. The second article is titled 'Impact of domestic violence on the psychological wellbeing of children in Iran.' and is by 'By: Ghasemi, Masoumeh. Journal of ...'. A callout points to the 'FAMILY violence' checkbox, stating: 'Note that "FAMILY violence" is a thesaurus term. I searched for "domestic violence"—but it's not the "standardized" term for this concept. I'll get better results if I use this term instead.' Another callout points to the 'FAMILY violence' checkbox, stating: 'Click on "FAMILY violence" to limit your results to only those items considered to be about "family violence."' A third callout points to the 'FAMILY violence' checkbox, stating: 'Note: Thesaurus terms are assigned by human beings—not computers! Someone has looked at every article and decided which thesaurus terms actually describe the content of the article. Keyword searching can find items with only a vague reference to your terms. But if an article is tagged with a thesaurus term, you know it will really be about that subject. This is why they make your results better!'

Article Title: Mothering in the context of domestic violence: the pervasiveness of a deficit model of mothering.

Authors: Lapierre, Simon

Source: Child & Family Social Work; Nov

Document Type: Article

Subject Terms:

- *ABUSE
- *SOCIAL WORK
- *CHILD welfare
- *MOTHER & child
- *CHILD protection services
- *CHILDREN -- Crimes against
- *FEMINISM
- *INTERPERSONAL relations

Author-Supplied Keywords:

- child welfare
- domestic violence
- feminist approaches/perspectives
- mothering

Abstract: Despite growing concerns with the situation of children exposed to violence, women have been seen as central in the welfare of their children. This paper examines how concepts of mothering have been articulated in the academic literature on children and domestic violence, and argues that the dominant discourse in this area has been one of blaming and more supportive practices. It's not always 100% right, so check the formatting!!

Oops! This APA citation has a couple of mistakes!

- “The” after the colon should be capitalized (first word of the subtitle)
- If your citation uses a DOI, do NOT end with a period!

Final Thoughts

- SocINDEX with Full Text is a great resource for finding articles regarding Social Work topics.
