LORE

The ancient capital of Central Vitallia and the black diamond of the south. The city of Bladefall has known glory many a times. Her power peaked during the Era of the Conqueror under the reign of Norionor Whiteshield who conquered a great part of Central Vitallia. The city is known for her knights and the royal army. It is also known that the city has two faces. When the sun goes down, vampires roam among the people. For some, it is considered a black page of Bladefall, although it is said that the vampires are an important asset for the city's strength. The metropolis is huge and is divided into districts. Black and silver colors dominate most of the city's buildings that are also decorated with statues and monuments. Stone paved streets spread throughout the city, unveiling well lit neighborhoods of a place that never sleeps. The streets are heavily guarded at all times by patrols that try to limit crime and the conflicts that occur due to the city's large population. The small port to the east connects Lothen to Igros and helps transfer people and goods among kingdoms.
