What if our knowledge about the Cosmos is only a tiny portion of the truth of the mystery of life and the Universe? It is easy to accept that the principle laws of chemistry and physics on earth are similar throughout the Universe; however, what if matter is only as small part of what we need to know to truly advance humanity? In fact, some frequencies of light and various invisible “rays” of energy (gamma rays, cosmic rays, UV ray, Infrared rays, X-rays, etc.) are not traditional matter and we accept their existence and their effects (ionizing radiation, heat, etc.). By whatever process we as humans use, we have a very limited range of energies we can perceive unless we invent a new way to sense these energies (typically we know they exist by their effects on the matter that can be seen or felt).

Anyone who follows astrophysics and high energy elemental physics will recognize that for centuries scientists have only considering matter as the source for everything, and yet increasingly scientists are concluding that everything in the Universe is composed of energy of different frequencies and intensities. They also recognized gravity and magnetic fields, but they cannot explain how they work (based on the research of matter). Presently using colliders to break the atoms apart still has not explained much of anything beyond what we already can know about our world (fission and fusion only consider matter and the radiation mentioned above).

MT Keshe is changing our understanding based on years of research, laboratory testing and demonstrations that matter is just energy and the real origin of everything is Plasma Energy. Once I started learning about Plasma Science and pondered its implications, this appears to be the path to “the theory of everything”. As importantly, Plasma Science explains the SOUL and creation...and supports the importance of Love (compassion, selflessness) and an individual’s need for spiritual growth as taught in the dominant religions (especially Christianity).

Let this sink in for a minute. I imagine all of us are interested in really understanding what “life is about” both from the traditional “matter perspective” and from the new unveiled “plasma energy perspective”. The latter provides more “definitive” answers and solutions to animal and plant health, environmental health and even space travel faster than the “speed of light” (instantaneous). All of us have heard the claims of “free energy” and dismissed it immediately; I did. But now it seems that it really exists.

[By the way Plasma Energy, is not the “plasma” seen with an electrically charged ions in a plasma lamp, rather it is term that indicates the core energy of everything in the universe. Plasma energy is much more continuous and powerful than many types of radiation, since it is the “dark matter” and “anti-matter” of traditional physics].

Before I overview to this, it is critical to understand MT Keshe and his unbelievable gift to life on earth, because he has started what I consider as the “democratization” of science while linking it to the so-called metaphysical.

PLASMA SCIENCE

These “mysteries” and secrets have been unveiled for everyone, as MT Keshe released all of his discoveries/theories and has made them open-source patents (2015) so that no government or corporation can stop the average person from learning and taking advantage of this technology. It may sound “insane”, but I feel this technology is more transformative than the discoveries of fire, electricity, the wheel and computers combined! Yet you can take advantage of this without much more than what you have around the house or can get at your local hardware and grocery store. If this does not make you curious, you will find yourself alone in a few years because virtually everything you know now is only a partial truth.

You should visit the Keshe Institute websites (see image above) to start learning about this and about MT Keshe (www.Kfssi.org is the general teaching website and videos are available --look for the LEARN MORE button which takes you to 12 videos titled “Understanding Plasma Science”, most about 2-3 hours long, created for the general public). BE AWARE that MT Keshe speaks English as an Iranian trained in England, thus it is at times a challenge to follow. The video noted above are done by others working with him, so they are the best way to start, but still this is a lot to absorb even if you have a strong science background. In MT Keshe’s talks he is a humble and spiritual man who sees this as a mission to bring the human race to peace and harmony via individual freedom and self-sufficiency.

As a short introduction, Dr. Keshe is an Iranian nuclear engineer who from age 8 worked with his father (a nuclear/radiation scientist mainly in medical diagnostics) as he traveled to repair systems in various hospitals throughout the middle east. He excelled in school and did most of his advanced training in England. He became a high-level nuclear engineer for the British government (as he independently worked on his theories of how to understand the “open questions” in physics, chemistry and medicine). He discovered technologies based on Plasma energy about 15-20 years ago and diligently pursued the evidence to come to the realization that science was missing the full spectrum of the universe by only thinking that matter was the key...it is not. The key is the energy that makes matter (and everything), which is Plasma Energy. He has shown that this is not only how matter works, but how everything works. Obviously to prove his theories, he had to figure out how Plasma energy works in biological and mechanical systems and how to manipulate or extract it for use. Having lived in the Middle East, Dr. Keshe has made his work a lifelong pursuit of understanding the universe to create peace and thoughtful evolution of the human race in our world. While he initially working on proving his base theories, Dr. Keshe came up with a design for spaceship flight by creating gravity fields around a vehicle (so called anti-gravity). He presented this to the British government but he wanted a contract that this technology would not be used for aggression/war and it would not be kept secret. At this point, Dr. Keshe was a very honest and trusting person. After some negotiation he realized that the government just wanted the details of his theories and not world peace. So he decided to do further work on his own as a private citizen. He subsequently started a business in Britain unrelated to his physics work (selling surplus items for the British government). However, the British secret service (MI5/MI6) kept trying to get him to come talk to them (soon he became suspicious that he was being stalked and spied on). This led to him having to flee Britain to Belgium. In Belgium he again approached the government about his ideas. Again this eventuated in him almost being murdered by poisoning. Other scientists working with him and some he knew were working on other similar vehicle propulsion, died under suspicious circumstances similar to what he experienced. He then moved to Italy, and they came after him again and to make a long story short, he was almost poisoned 3-4 times further (government operatives from Belgium and Britain). By this time (2012), Dr. Keshe developed a team of nearly 100 like-minded researchers in multiple countries so that when he released the patents in 2015 (Keshe Foundation Space Ship Institute), there were too many involved for governments to suppress. However, then they started a campaign to discredit his work. Luckily it is very hard to discredit such work when the average citizen can confirm his theories in their kitchen at home.

Thus, you can see Dr. Keshe has “democratized” the new Plasma Science. By the way, this dovetails with all that we know in traditional science and fills in the gaps that it does not explain (for instance...traveling faster than the speed of light, dark matter, anti-matter, telekinesis, gravity). Also, there are other independent researchers totally unassociated with Dr. Keshe who are making similar discoveries. The best example is the Dan Winter group that has developed a “cold plasma” ray system that is an updated version of the system developed in France by Dr. Piorie in the 1970s-1990 curing every type of cancer and disease in animals. Apparently this was ready for human use and the French government defunded it because Piorie could not explain how it cured every disease. The system Dan Winter and others developed is can TheraPhi which used noble gas tubes and a Tesla coil to develop a cold plasma bioactive field that is “tuned” to hydrogen. In essence this energizes your body and similar to GANS and the Keshe Plasma Coils, it “feeds” your cells and DNA in a special way...at the Plasma Energy level. Plasma energy works by linking fields and it always creates a scenario where the strong feels the weak until they balance. Because Plasma Energy is linked throughout the universe, it has an unlimited capacity to pull more energy as needed. Not only is this Energy, it is Intelligent Energy and it is continuous and it harmonizes the capacity of living things to carry out a healing process. This is the reason we always “heal” ourselves.

You might wonder; how can this work? The simple explanation is that in most cases your body (and other life forms) has the capacity to cure all diseases that are caused by an internal failure of your body’s maintenance. If you lack the proper balance of energy to detoxify, support your immune system and regenerate (stem cell production, cell/DNA repair) you are not going to do well regardless of what the doctors give you. In fact, most diseases may have a root cause in this imbalance (deficiency, toxin and other traumas). Now this does not cure a physical trauma like a gunshot wound (at least not yet); it does allow your cells to “be the best they can be”. Thus researchers in this field do not say they “cure” disease, rather they rebalance the ailing body to allow it to heal itself. Groups doing this are documenting that diseases like hypertension, diabetes and arthritis can be reversed just with the use of the routine GANS Energized Water (contains plasma energy) such that patients can discontinue their medications. However, if that approach does not work, then the medication can be converted to a Medicine GANS which will replace the need to buy any more medication (see below). GANS are put in Pads, Tubes, Tubing and other containers as ways to provide Plasma Energy for the body as it will pass directly through the skin into your body.

The Keshe Foundation’s approach is to offer free education to anyone and to get other scientists involved as volunteers in disciplines of medicine, physics, chemistry, environmental science, agriculture and space travel. The research group has grown to about 12,000 people many not from the traditional scientific community. There are now thousands of experiments being done by average people as well as by trained scientists. When you understand the power and “simplicity” of Plasma Science, you will see why those “powers that be” entities (governments/corporations/deep state) that now control our world want to control or hide this technology. It appears this technology, once developed will make almost everything you now pay to live almost “free” {energy, food, medicine}, cure most diseases without traditional medicine {including cancer without any toxic effect}, and allow the cost-effective development of “space age” local and extraterrestrial transportation. This is why the organization is a “space ship institute”, because with this technology MT Keshe will have reached his goal to solved almost all of the issues needed for space exploration and colonization of other worlds.

I will summarize what this is “all about” (be ready to shake your head in disbelief). Dr. Keshe felt that traditional scientific understand must be missing a lot of what is really important. He realized that everything is energy, which at times manifests as “matter”. He also felt that everything in the universe, from atoms to galaxies share the same laws, both for matter and other forms of energy. I am still learning the details of how he worked this out, but once you understand what he has done, it starts making sense and you realize that this is the most fundamental knowledge to all that is present in the universe. Obviously, one has to dive into the Keshe Institutes public teachings (see websites below with thousands of hours of videos and thousands of documents) to learn this as it is a lot more detailed and specific than I ever expected as his researchers have developed applications and processes that are available now and this knowledge will lead to amazing new discoveries.

A key aspect of this is that matter is only a small amount of our world and it is manifest based on our Gravitation and Magnetic fields of the world around us, what MT Keshe calls MaGrav fields (because they are the same as magnetic and gravitation forces). Matter is the lowest energy level of MaGrav fields and our senses can detect them as matter. All the space or “void” that scientist talk about inside and around atoms and in outer space is not empty, rather it is full of MaGrav fields. In fact, MaGrav fields are the source of everything and power everything. Presently we combust matter (oxidation reactions breaking covalent bonds) to get a very limited amount of energy...however there is a limitless energy locked up in Plasma energy (similar to a nuclear bomb being drastically more powerful than a convention explosion, but this energy is not explosive or uncontrolled). I really mean virtually limitless! This is because MaGrav fields are constantly interacting with all others and balancing (MaGrav fields always give energy to similar fields that are weaker until they reach a balance); thus our universe is connected from end to end by Plasma Energy. In essence, this is intelligent energy and all living things correct issues if they are balanced by having access to all the Plasma Energy they need.

So you might ask, can we “tap into” this energy and has this been happening right before our eyes without us knowing it? The answer to both is a big YES! Get ready to shake you head in disbelief. There are at least SIX states of matter (remembering matter is just the lowest MaGrav field energy form). The ones you know are SOLID, LIQUID and GAS. The other three discovered by MT Keshe are: Nano state of solid, Gas in Nano state of Solid (GANS) and Plasma fields. Plasma fields are ubiquitous from single atoms to the entire universe and they are dynamic (always in motion) and always seek a balance. The MaGrav fields of things larger than an atom are the dynamic and combined energies of all of the individual MaGrav fields that the object is composed of. Epigenetics is likely driven more by these fields than DNA transcription, explaining the limited ability to fight disease by DNA analysis...but I digress. What MT Keshe has done is build research teams to studying how to manipulate this energy and understand how to make it work for us. They have already worked out many ways to do this, and this is related to understanding and manipulating the Nanostate of solid and GANS. I will summarize these two new states of matter.

The Nanostate of Solid is a key to Energy Production and the creation of GANS. How this works is that a metal (usually Copper wire or plate) is treated to change the entire surface in to the Nanostate of Solid. 20 years ago this was known to ONLY occur with the exposure to high intensity gamma radiation. When MT Keshe was doing his experiments in Belgium he was arrested on suspicion of having illegal nuclear materials. He had to show the authorities that he had invented a new simple series of processes that did not require radiation to create this outcome. The main approaches he discovered is extended exposure to common lye (NaOH granules activated with boiling water-improved with 20% KOH) by submersion or vapor (for several weeks to months) or by using high heat with a blow torch. What this does is “loosen” the upper layers of metal atoms so they are not compacted in the normal solid state. Normal solids have atoms so “packed in” that their plasma energy is confined to the solid matter.

PLASMA SCIENCE

The Nano State layer by these approaches creates 30,000-50,000 layers of particles that are nearly pure copper that form a fur like surface under a scanning electron microscope. This Nano State is very unique, in that it is a perfect insulator from the exterior and it is a super-conductor at the interface between the Nano State surface layers and normal solid matter below. The surface becomes jet black because the nanolayers traps all of the light energy spectrum (see coil and plate example below).

Nano State surfaces also emit plasma energy. Because the atoms are now still connected but separated from each other, the plasma between them is “exposed” and strong magnetic/gravitational fields are demonstrable around them. This allows us to extract this “free and limitless” energy by several developed methods that impact the production and use of energy, medicine/health, environment/agriculture and transportation/space travel:

1. MaGrav Unit: This has been available for several years and uses Nano State coated wire, coils, capacitor systems that can propagate the Nanostate of Solid coating for your entire house saving about 15% of electrical costs initially and about 50% after 8-12 months as the process completes throughout your entire copper electrical wire and switches. Do it yourself for a couple hundred dollars or buy one for about $700. A similar unit is available for automobiles and it also saves gas mileage.
2. MaGrav Generator: Nano State coated wire, coils, capacitor systems that generates electricity from the MaGrav energy around us, about 3kW unit for “off-the-grid” is about $1000, but again, the plans are available to do it yourself.
3. MaGrav technology is in development for space flight using an “anti-gravity” envelope
4. GANS: Gas As Nanostate of Solid is the other transitional state to plasma which are created using both the Nano State metal layering technology in a configuration that mimics how plants and animals to create the plasma energy at the microscopic level in non-metallic matter (food, medicines, etc.) at room temperature. We will talk about this next because this is where you will be able to use this technology in millions of applications today.

PLASMA SCIENCE

The GANS of non-metallic matter is as if a “normal” gaseous state was in a similar arrangement as the Nanostate of Solid. The first set of GANS are the basic types that represent the main atomic compositions of living beings (carbon, oxygen, hydrogen, nitrogen [amino acids], copper, calcium and zinc):

1. CO₂ (carbon-the communicator and backbone of organic molecules)
2. CH₃ (hydrogen-the energizer that provides energy and helps cell growth)
3. Amino Acids (provides nitrogen and a link to our DNA plasma energy-they are created in the same generators as the CO₂, CH₃, ZnO, CuO GANS by floating on the top of the salt water)
4. CuO (copper-the element that helps skeletal muscle health)
5. ZnO (zinc-the element that help neural activities...used for emotional and neural health)
6. Calcium (calcium is for bone health)

The second type of GANS are generally made from organic substances by combining with CO₂ GANS:

1. Food GANS
2. Medicine GANS

Again, this is a transitional state of matter that can be induced by acids and caustic on organic matter of every sort you can imagine (originally they made these type of GANS by exposure to acid or caustic similar to metal, but it took longer than the present recommended approach with mixed results). It was found with testing that it is easier and consistently effective to make them by including the “basic” CO₂ GANS and the food or medicine needed (either processed in acid/caustic or dehydrated/powdered or liquid medication).

PLASMA SCIENCE

In fact, because of this work it appears that our whole concept of digestion will change. MT Keshe discovered this is by studying plant and animal life forms and reanalyzing how the energy must be created. In fact, leaves of plants lead to the use of Nano Solid coating on a metal in a saltwater bath to capture CO₂ as GANS. Plants create the same energy and attract CO₂ or O₂ depending on circumstances (CO₂ in daylight; O₂ in the dark). It appears that our digestion is primarily a way to convert our food into a GANS state to absorb the energy without having to absorb and process the food beyond absorbing a limited amount of molecules as raw materials. Think about this, only a small portion of your nutrients (20%) are totally broken down into their individual molecules and make it to the blood stream. What they have found is that a lot of energy is actually absorbed through the skin and lungs as plasma energy (sunlight energizes us as well).

Now this is how crazy this is with GANS. They expect in the near future (not next week, but probably in 5-10 years) this can end all world hunger and cure most disease. Sounds crazy, right. Well you can start doing this in your kitchen tomorrow if you want. Here is the deal...and I am in the process of confirming this by my direct experience, but the videos and other evidence for this so far are completely supportive.

GANS is essentially a mixture of matter in the state where its plasma energy is stored in a gel-like condition that sediments in water. The plasma energy in this state can be transferred to water by direct and indirect exposure. It has become apparent that water/H₂O is a special substance, as it can absorb/hold and transfer Plasma Energy from a GANS and then transport it to cells and tissues. This is probably the main reason for the vascular system being dominantly a mild saltwater solution. GANS need to be in a saline solution to be created and this explains why our blood is similar to the sap of a plant. Since plasma energy can radiate through objects just like gravity and electromagnetic fields, you can drink the water layer from the top of a GANS container as well as just put a container of pure water next to the GANS jar and in 6-8 hours the pure tasting and appearing water will absorb the GANS.

Therefore, if you put a bottle of FOOD GANS next to plain bottle of water for a few hours, the plain water can be transformed and you will get the plasma energy effect of eating what the FOOD GANS. You can also make a GANS Pad and feed through the skin. Sounds nuts, right! Now this can be done with the most nutritious food you can find, as it does not have to taste good, because the water you drink just tastes like water. Hey, got an expensive medication, you can replicate it by making it a GANS! And here is the best part, the GANS lasts for years providing a virtually limitless supply of any food, drug or supplement energy. If you take the water off the very top of a jar above the actual GANS (once it has sedimented-several hours), you just add more distilled water. You never ingest the GANS itself as it is so strong that the few that have accidentally touched their tongue with some only their protective gloves found their tongue became numb for hours to days and they did not feel well. You can see the energy fields if you put a small jar or ring (see below) of GANS water on the top of a container of previously unexposed water and put it into the deep freeze, because the energy rays keep the water from freezing. Once the water is frozen, if you remove it and break it open there is an area of liquid water in the center of otherwise solid ice. The GANS even if stored in water itself does not freeze regardless of how long it stays in the freezer.

What does this show us?
The field forces within the water are so strong that the ice will not complete the freezing process. Remember, ice freezes from the outside inwards in the freezer. Field forces are interfering with the normal freezing process.

IF you think this sounds crazy, this is just the beginning. Clinical trials are now in process in Ghana where so far it appears every one of 60 patients is being cured with IV fluid created from GANS exposed water. The tumors appear to shrink in hours to days and it was reported that when GANS was exposed to a cell culture of a malignancy, they observed a complete transformed the cells into normal appearing cells in hours. I have not seen the pathology yet, but all of this is being done in complete transparency as is typical of Dr. Keshe and his foundation. Obviously, NO Big Pharma group or traditional medical special interest group wanted to support his work as it is going to change everything.

By the way there are also similar amazing agricultural technologies that include GANS. GANS used in agriculture increases growth, increases shelf life (dramatically), decreases disease and insect infestations and extends growing season. The Australian group has shown that they do not need greenhouses both for very hot and very cold seasons when GANS are used in small rings or vials tied to the plants. Also a sealed jar of GANS exposed to the water flow at one point in an aquaponic or hydroponics system induces all of these benefits. Below are images for the Australian group which was similar in Canada and Italy. All reported elimination of disease and extreme temperature tolerance. The Canadians were not needing to use a greenhouse to extend the season and they harvested more produce several weeks earlier than normal.

SUMMARY of PLASMA GARDENING in NARROGIN

1. Plasma fields placed in a system hanging around a plant or tree has an apparent beneficial effect on fruit production.
2. The plasma of CO₂ & ZnO mixed in with small, graduated amounts of CH₃ & CuO produced this result.
3. Plant growth was accelerated & healthy in the plasma fields.
4. Plants appeared to have enhanced immunity to diseases and insect attack & may lead to eradication of Fruit Fly.
5. Plants coming to the end of their production cycle can be reinvigorated to extend extra production with plasma.
6. Spraying plasma combined with the system appears to give plants an immunity to weather extremes for this region.
7. Fruit production is dramatically increased & size remains a good average size though not excessively large.
8. My results using plasma fields for fruit & vegetable growing is most successful & I will be eliminating the use of insecticides.
9. World use of plasma tech in will revolutionise future agriculture.

In summary, THIS CHANGES EVERYTHING and this movement has just started to explore the potential of this technology. As an introduction about myself, I have been retired from the active practice of medicine for several years. I was a practicing Anatomic Pathologist trained at Indiana University School of Medicine and became a Professor, started a Fellowship and left to start my own company/laboratory in 1985. That laboratory became a state reference medical laboratory and an international FDA Clinical Trial reference laboratory. We managed over 500 clinical trials including the first anti-cancer vaccine (HPV). During my time I saw a lot of technology that seemed disappear or not get developed. I also found a lot of helpful things that physicians are never taught or refused to believe. My approach is to never stop learning, so when a close relative was diagnosed with ovarian cancer last December, I started looking for approaches I never had experience with, especial nutritional. I found several nutritional ideas, but the thought of the intake of vast quantities of some foods or the potent harm from possible toxic foods gave me concern. I soon came across the Keshe Foundation and although thinking “this seems crazy”, I stuck to it and really worked on it. I soon was amazed about what was being done, and it was truly powerful, relatively cheap and uncomplicated. Once I started to work with GANS and realized I could make all of these nutritional/natural anti-cancer food concentrates as a FOOD and Medicine GANS, I realized that this would allow me to make a very strong dose of the nutritionals (purple carrots and apricot pits/B17) that would be just like drinking water. I also made a full compliment of GANS Pads that she wore in pockets in a shirt or waist belt. In her situation, the approach was to do a short course of chemotherapy followed by hysterectomy with biopsies. Initially, the scans showed apparent metastases in the spleen, left neck, inguinal nodes and possible axillary node. After a few chemotherapy cycles, the scans were basically the same. My nutritional plus GANS Pads and Energized Plasma Water systems were available just as the chemotherapy was started. Several months later, the scan just before surgery showed the metastases on scan seem to be gone. The surgery showed no gross appearance of any cancer. The pathology report showed no cancer, just an area of dead tissue in the one ovary that was healing in by scar. This was likely the origin of the tumor but it was all gone. Now this short course of chemotherapy she had could have killed much of the tumor, but total remission seems unlikely as her situation is not often so overwhelmingly responsive. The problem now is that her physicians think that they are seeing an unusually good response and are pushing for more chemotherapy (a unexpected complication that we are happy to confront).

Although this is an early upstart business, I have just produced GANS for CO₂, Copper oxides, Zinc oxide and CH₃/Iron oxide with their amino acids (the main GANS types). I am producing the less common and agricultural GANS (Magnesium GANS, Ocean GANS) and many others (Calcium GANS, Silver GANS, Shungite-C60 GANS). Because I have a good production of pure CO₂ GANS (the Master GANS) using encapsulation methods, I am making a broad spectrum of Food and Medicine GANS (Naproxen/Aleve GANS Pads, CO₂+ZnO GANS Pads, Muscle Cramp/soreness Pads, etc.). Many of these items are in initial testing, but these common GANS and Naproxen have been received very well by our test subjects. These products are being offered at a cost that will be as low as a single purchase of the medicine, yet is will likely be effective the rest of your life and can be shared with others endlessly.

This will truly change everything!
