This follows analysis by Collinson et al. (2017) who showed that leucolepis falls within the range of intraspecific genetic variation observed in icterinus and most likely represents a plumage variant of it. Phyllastrephus icterinus (HBW and BirdLife International 2017) and P. lorentzi (del Hoyo and Collar 2016) were previously lumped as P. icterinus following Dowsett & Forbes- Watson (1993), Sibley & Monroe (1990, 1993) and Fishpool (2005).
